The Big Four

by Flame The Dragon Rider

Category: How to Train Your Dragon, Rise of the Guardians
Genre: Friendship, Hurt-Comfort
Language: English
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2014-11-15 09:32:00
Updated: 2014-11-16 09:33:52
Packaged: 2016-04-27 05:53:27
Rating: T
Chapters: 3
Words: 540
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: A series of mindlessly short drabbles about the Big Four. Lot better than it sounds. Now includes minor Merricup fluff! I DO NOT OWN ANY OF THE BIG FOUR CHARACTERS. RATED T AS A PRECAUTION.

1. Jack's Differences

Drabble 1: Jack's differences.

The Big Four were similar in many ways, but these similarities to each other made them different from each other as well.

Hiccup's eyes were bright emerald green, Rapunzel's were gentle olive green, Jack's were playful icy blue, and Merida's were deep sky blue.

Hiccup's hair was auburn and ruffled, Rapunzel's was blonde and smooth, Jack's was ice white and windblown, and Merida's was ginger and puffy.

They all had to fight against their superiors in a way, Hiccup his dad, Merida and Rapunzel their mothers, and Jack the moon.

But Jack is more different than the others.

Hiccup had Toothless. Merida had Angus. Rapunzel had Pascal.

But Jack had nothing. He rode the wind on his own, causing havoc and enjoying the solitude. But he didn't really mind.

* * *

>Yeah, I know, really short, focuses slightly more on Jack than the others, even though Hiccup's my personal favourite.

Still! Follow, favourite, review, and I hope you enjoyed!

Ps. I will be doing more of this.

2. Feelings

All of them had differences and they knew that. They appreciated that they were all unique in their own ways. But no matter how different they were, they always had great fun together.

Merida, secretly of coarse, had a soft spot for Hiccup. Whatever it was about him she just liked.

Hiccup, also secretly, kind of liked Merida. No matter how much she annoyed him with the nickname wee lamb her bravery and endurance really did impress him.

Rapunzel had a crush on Jack. He may be dead and almost too cold to touch, she really liked his playful personality.

Jack, he hated to admit, liked Rapunzel. It was horrible, to like someone so much, but be dead.

So they all liked each other, but didn't want to admit it.

* * *

>Hmm, this seems just a snidge fluffy. T for a reason, I guess.

3. Wee Lamb

The Big Four had split up. None of them had wanted to do it, but they had to. A few years later, they decided to meet up again.

Merida was amazed at how much Hiccup had changed. He was now twenty and looked almost completely different, bar the ruffled auburn hair, emerald green eyes and geeky grin. When he came over to her she raised an eyebrow and let the corner of her mouth twitch upwards. Hiccup noticed and laughed slightly.

"Guess you can't call me wee lamb anymore."

"Don't have to be wee to be a lamb."

Hiccup laughed again and Merida joined in. They looked straight into each other's eyes.

"Oh my gods guys!"

The two of them turned around at Rapunzel's voice but a girl with short brunette hair launched herself into them.

"Uh..." Hiccup mumbled, trying to step away. Merida stumbled at the force of the impact and grabbed Hiccup's arm. They looked at each other and looked away again quickly and Merida let go.

The girl let go and beamed widely at them. Jack was standing behind her, grinning.

"Hold on a minute." Merida said in sudden realisation. "Rapunzel?"

The girl nodded. Merida's mouth fell open. "What happened your HAIR?"

* * *

>Uh, okay, um... Fluff. Huh.

End file.